

Komal Agarwal is an Assistant Professor in the Department of English of Shaheed Bhagat Singh College, University of Delhi. She obtained her Doctor of Philosophy, Master of Philosophy and Master of Arts degrees from the Centre for English Studies, School of Language, Literature and Cultural Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University. She completed her undergraduate degree from Daulat Ram College, University of Delhi. Her research and academic interests centre around the epic Mahabharata and its performative and popular versions, classical Indian literature and aesthetics, folk and popular cultures in India, gender studies and translation studies. She has published several research papers and translations in international journals, contributed chapters to international volumes (books and encyclopaedia), and presented a number of papers on the Mahabharata and its retellings in various conferences and seminars.

She is actively engaged in teaching courses on Indian Classical Literature, 16th and 17th English Drama, British Romantic Literature, Literary Criticism, Translation Studies, Academic Writing, and various courses of Communication Studies to undergraduate students for over a decade. She started the Centre for Indian Knowledge Systems in the College in January 2023. She is also passionate about environmental advocacy and is the Co-Convener of Harithkram, the environment society in the College.